FILM OLOMOUČ

CzechRepublic

„We wanted a city in the film where different ages and times could be seen and felt. Everything from the Romanesque style through Baroque until today. Olomouc is one of the few cities that has all of this.“

Miroslav Krobot – famous Czech director, screenwriter, actor
(for the Olomoucký deník newspaper 23. 4. 2016 on the film The Quartette)

OLOMOUC AS A FAVOURITE FILM LOCATION

A beautiful historic centre, many monuments, romantic streets and an unmistakable genius loci. All this lures not only tourists but also filmmakers. The city of Olomouc thus moves to different periods of time and experiences ordinary human stories as well as dramatic clashes and moments full of tension.

Olomouc has already hosted several epic film shootings. For example, the international co-production film Doctor Zhivago was shot here starring Keira Knightley. The space in front of the Saint Wenceslas Cathedral was used by filmmakers for the shooting of the Czech film The Last Escape of Jerome of Prague with Ondřej Vetchý.

Do you know the mysterious Shades (Stínadla)? Olomouc served as their backdrop even twice.

In the 1969 black-and-white Mystery of the Conundrum series and in the 1993 feature film of the same name.

A few years ago, an impressive metal sculpture of a space Alien appeared on a house in Šemberova Street in the city centre (photo from the cover). H.R. Giger, a biomechanical surrealist sculptor, and the owner of the house used this sculpture as a sign of the “Krátký film Praha” film production company's office.

In recent years, however, Olomouc has been teeming with detectives and criminals. The city was especially popular with the creators of Czech crime series. A Case of the Exorcist, Blue Shadows, Five Dead Dogs, Water Goblin or Live Targets, as well as several episodes of the Cops and Robbers series were filmed here.

Follow in the footsteps of these and other films and series and see the film locations of Czech and foreign crews.

★ Nobel Prize for Literature (the novel)

The novel Doctor Zhivago earned its author, Boris Pasternak, the Nobel Prize for Literature, an event that enraged the Soviet regime and forced him to decline the award.

Both the book and the magnificent film depict the life story of a doctor with the soul of a poet in the most dramatic period of modern Russian history. This international co-production has been the most significant filmmaking effort in Olomouc so far. Real movie stars such as Keira Knightley, Hans Matheson or Sam Neill gathered here and hundreds of extras from Olomouc also got their chance.

Most of the urban scenes taking place in Paris and Moscow were shot here. For this, director Giacomo Campiotti used the Bezruč Park, Žerotínovo Square, Wurmova Street and, due to the similarity with wide Moscow boulevards, also the Svobody Street.

Almost everyone knows the story of the Three Musketeers. The young D'Artagnan, who aspires to become a musketeer, is drawn into the vortex of political intrigues of the royal court of Louis XIII. He overcomes all dangers without betraying his friends and his beloved Constance. Filmmakers like to choose Olomouc for two reasons. On camera, it looks like a real European metropolis, and yet the filming here is not that expensive. At the request of director Sergey Zhigunov, Olomouc was transformed into Paris of the 17th century.

A large part of the exterior scenes was filmed here and the famous characters Athos, Porthos, Aramis and D'Artagnan walked through the historic centre. You could meet them in Univerzitní Street or Žerotínovo Square.

The story takes place in 1992, half a year before the division of Czechoslovakia.

The young detective Richard Krauz investigates a new case connected to the crimes of the former StB secret police. He sets out to find the man to whom all clues lead – the specialist in „ultimate“ interrogations – the Red Captain. But he is not the only one looking for him.

The filmmakers placed part of the investigation in Olomouc, specifically on Dolní Square near the Marian Plague Column opposite the historic Masné krámy houses. That is why we are even more pleased with the success the film has achieved in Czechia, Slovakia, and Estonia.

This series explores the history of forensic science in an entertaining way.

Individual episodes deal with crimes that gave rise to important forensic procedures and methods, such as identification of the gun by the bullet fired. The series is thus set across history, particularly in 20th century Europe.

A number of well-known Czech actors and many of their German colleagues took part in the filming. The film crew also worked in Olomouc nearby the Saint Wenceslas Cathedral on Wenceslas and Žerotínovo Square where scenes from 17th century France were filmed. It was at that time that the field of professional handwriting analysis was created.

 HAF Award Asia Film Hong Kong – Screenplay (WON)

Director Václav Kadrnka based the film on personal experiences and touches on the topic of family relationships. The protagonists of the story act in an impersonal hospital environment of the Olomouc University Hospital at the intensive care unit, in the labyrinth of corridors and staircases, near elevators and in waiting rooms.

It is a story of a father who falls into a coma after a massive stroke. Mother and son suddenly stand over his lifeless body. The person they love is far away and no one knows if he will ever come back. They humbly accept the diagnosis but resist the final verdict. At their father's bedside, they search for the right words to tell him.

The film was shot at the Olomouc University Hospital in the Franz Josef's building which was intended for demolition at that time. The film was made under the patronage of the Archbishop of Olomouc.

DOCUMENTARY FILM

Czechia / Slovakia / 2015

Screenplay and direction:

Ján Novák

The story is about the fate of two students at the University of Olomouc, Robert Vrba and Alfred Waltzer, who escaped from the Auschwitz extermination camp in April 1944. They wrote a 32-page report about their experiences, which reached the Vatican, the Pope, President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and journalists. Unfortunately, no one responded to their message.

The filmmakers chose the premises of the Armoury, today the Library of the Palacký University, and a stop on Hrdinů Square near the Hussite church. In 2020, the story of the two students turned into a very successful film in a Slovak-Czech-German co-production under the title The Auschwitz Report.

HUSSITE CHURCH

www.husuvsborolomouc.cz

The building by architect Hubert Aust combines elements of functionalism, antiquity, and Byzantine style. The church was ceremoniously opened in 1926, and Olomouc thus became the seat of the Moravian-Silesian diocese. The building assumed the role of a diocesan cathedral and remains so to this day.

FILM FRAME

Marek Mičke, a film enthusiast, launched an amazing and remarkable project a few years ago. On his Facebook account named „Film Frame“ (Filmové poličko), he publishes photos of film locations. You can see the most famous movie locations and compare how the place looked in the movie and how it looks today.

Mark, how did it all start and what do you enjoy so much about this hobby?

I always enjoyed visiting movie locations. I noticed that it is a favourite pastime for many Czechs as they can combine a trip with a visit to a movie location. It's the same for me, I came across this concept abroad and thought it would be nice to transfer it to our countries. But I didn't just want to copy, that's why I also make videos about film locations and take historical photos. And what I enjoy most is taking a trip with my family to the photo location.

How do you choose the locations you visit? What brought you to Olomouc?

I always prefer locations of my favourite movies. I wouldn't photograph something I haven't seen. I get the greatest enjoyment when I can photograph a scene that somehow captures my heart or is essential for the film. A lot of great things was shot in Olomouc. Besides, I really like it when I can go somewhere outside of Prague.

What places did you visit in Olomouc? Which movies were you referring to?

I mostly walked around the city centre. So, of course, I was at Horní Square with the Astronomical Clock that appeared in The Joke, at Žerotínovo Square and the adjacent streets where the Cops and Robbers series were shot. I also hung around the university where the wonderful Doctor Zhivago was filmed, and I also took some photos on the May 1st Street where The Case of the Dead Man was shot. I tried to capture especially the nice places, but there are a lot of them here.

How do you rate Olomouc as a film location, did you like it here?

It's beautiful here. Since I'm from Prague, I was actually surprised that more films haven't been shot here and that filmmakers don't choose Olomouc as a location more often. There are beautiful spots here that are not spoiled by omnipresent advertising or of tourist crowds like in Prague.

HISTORICAL MONUMENTS ON WHEELS

HISTORIC „GRANNY“ TRAM
www.dpmo.cz

This beautiful tram number 223 used to run in Prague between 1930 and 1974 and then served in Olomouc as a service vehicle until 1981. Reconstructed, it went on its first ride around Olomouc in 2008. This historic „granny“ tram starred in The Mystery of the Conundrum (1993) and Doctor Zhivago (2002). It still goes to the streets of Olomouc several times a year on festive occasions.

RAILWAY GEMS OF THE PAST
www.cdnostalgie.cz

In the very heart of Olomouc, not far from the main train station, there is a depository and workshop of the ČD Nostalgie museum where real gems of our railway history are exhibited. Steam locomotives and machines from the recent past can be seen here. The museum also participates in film production. It prepares trains for filmmakers according to their requirements, provides professional consultations and helps with selection of locations. Machines from this museum have appeared in several films, video clips and documentaries (e.g. Traveling with Steam). The depository opens its doors several times a year on various occasions when historical trains are also dispatched to the area around.

KINGDOM OF ROAD VETERANS

The museum of historic cars called Veteran Arena is the biggest private, publicly accessible museum in Czechia. On an area of 400 m², you will find exhibits from the 1930s. The heart of the exhibition is a collection of Czechoslovak Tatra, Praga, Aero, Z and Škoda cars. Foreign brands include Mercedes, BMW, and VW. In total, around 160 exhibits are on display, so the makers of period films really have a lot to choose from including unique Wikov cars made in nearby Prostějov.

DO YOU KNOW THAT..

... the famous Czech actress Hana Maciuchová († 2021) started her acting career in Olomouc? She graduated from the Olomouc-Hejčín secondary school and was already involved in amateur theatre in those days. She was also a member of the Studio at the Oldřich Stibor Theatre in Olomouc (today the Moravian Theatre). She regularly and happily returned to Olomouc both for work and to see family and friends.

... the protagonists of the Czech comedy Gentleman's Ride (2004), starring Martin Dejdar, Ondřej Vetchý and Josef Abrahám, had to cope without women at the Svobody Street, the market hall and Denisova Street?

... Mr. Tau went to work for the first time (1975) in Olomouc? He found a job at a local dairy in Pavelkova Street. He managed the first working day with his own charm, but for others it was a complete disaster. The family fantasy comedy Mr. Tau (1971) has been entertaining children for more than 50 years.

... an important role in Hermína Týrlová's animated film The Curious Letter (1961) is played by a mailbox placed by filmmakers on the corner of the Renaissance house At the Black Eagle on Horní Square in Olomouc? The film tells the story of a letter that desired to see the world and forgot about its timely delivery.

... the Czech comedy The Heart full of Hopes (1985) was also filmed in Olomouc? The heroes of the story are former friends who become archenemies not only because of their classmate Zuzana, who they both like. In the film, you can see, among other things, the Caesar fountain on Horní Square and the interiors of the ZŠ Hájkova primary school building.

... Olomouc is doubling for the beautiful European city, where the main character of the short-story drama I Am Wandering (2010) arrives? The city welcomes the woman four times, lets her wander in its Baroque labyrinth and experience four different stories. The actress in the lead role, Silvia Antolová, unfortunately did not see the premiere. She died of cancer at the age of 35 and the film is dedicated to her.

ACADEMIA FILM OLOMOUC

INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL OF SCIENCE DOCUMENTARY FILMS

Academia Film Olomouc (AFO), an international festival of science documentary films, ranks among the largest cinematography festivals in Czechia. The high number of accredited viewers only confirms this. The festival has been organized by the Palacký University since 1966. Originally a low-key, non-public initiative has turned into one of the biggest educational events in Europe over the years.

AFO focuses on the popularization of science and annually presents the best contemporary scientific films from prestigious world productions. Renowned icons of Czech and foreign science and representatives of film and television industry come to Olomouc to present them in person.

The city has already hosted scientists such as evolutionary biologist Richard Dawkins, robotics visionary Hiroshi Ishiguro or AI philosopher Susan Schneider.

Visitors can look forward to a rich festival programme presenting major shifts in scientific understanding in the form of films, documentaries, discussions, lectures, and panel debates with guests from the field of science and film industry. Viewers can delve into the secrets of distant planets, Earth's oceans, global warming, development of robotics and artificial intelligence.

Various topics discussed include the position of women in science and society, human addiction, as well as the importance of the science fiction genre for the popularisation of science.

The festival is inherently linked to the music and entertainment programme with its own fanbase. Performers from the world's alternative scene come to Olomouc for AFO, workshops and various competitions are held there.
